REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE TRUSTEES

The first year of the School's second century is notable for its continuation of the 100-year tradition of scholarly vigor and excellence. This is amply documented elsewhere in the reports of the Chairman of the Managing Committee and the Director of the School.

Significant new discoveries, particularly in the Agora but elsewhere as well, contributed dramatically to our knowledge of the ancient world. Concurrently, less spectacular but nonetheless significant changes took place on both sides of the ocean in the School's plant and administration. I refer you to the above-mentioned reports for developments in Greece regarding improvements to the Blegen Library and administrative offices, as well as the establishment of the Gennadeion West House as the Director's Residence.

In the United States a change in investment management necessitated a number of new arrangements, most noteworthy the consolidation of bookkeeping services, formerly provided by the Chase Manhattan Bank, with the Development Office in Mayer House. In charge of this combined office, which now coordinates all the School's affairs, is the new Manager for Administration and Development, Ludmila Schwarzenberg. The new arrangement is proving to be both less costly and more efficient.

During 1981/82 the Trustees met three times at Mayer House in New York City. At the Annual Meeting on November 20, 1981, Messrs. Fleischmann, Simpson, and Thompson were re-elected to the Board for five-year terms, and a new, Trustee was elected, Edward E. Cohen of Philadelphia. The following officers were elected to serve three-year terms: William Kelly Simpson, Chairman; Elizabeth A. Whitehead, President; Robert A. McCabe and Doreen C. Spitzer, Vice Presidents; Hunter Lewis, Treasurer; and William T. Loonis, Secretary. The Trustees also met on April 2 and May 17, 1982.

Following the November meeting a dinner was held for Trustees and many friends of the School. T. Leslie Shear, Jr., Field Director of the Agora Excavations, giving a lavishly illustrated presentation, made the formal announcement of the discovery in the Agora of the celebrated 5th-century B.C. Painted Stoa.

Funding for the present three-year campaign of the Agora excavations had been provided by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and the David and Lucile Packard Foundation. At its meeting earlier in the day the Board reaffirmed its vigorous support for continued excavation in the Agora in the specific vicinity of the Painted Stoa where it is hoped to reveal completely the important structures coming to light. The Board authorized application to the N.E.H. for a final three-year matching grant and to other sources of funding for completion of the present phase of excavation. To help during the interim period a supplementary grant of $30,000 was awarded in the current year by the David and Lucile Packard Foundation.
As might be expected, much of the effort of the Board has been directed to the financial needs of the School. The Trustees expressed a goal to limit the spending of endowment income to 5% of the value of the endowment. To achieve this goal new investment managers have been chosen in hopes of increasing the value of present assets, and efforts to bring in new endowment are accelerating. The stated $6 million Centennial Fund Campaign is just short of the halfway mark.

While many gifts have made up this $3 million, the most significant gift, $1 million, came from a trust established by the former Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Ward M. Canaday. Some of the Canaday funds are making possible the renovation of the Blegen Library and the administrative offices in Athens. The balance will be placed in the general endowment.

Among significant gifts during the year, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation awarded the School a matching grant of $500,000 for endowment. Other notable grants included $30,000 for the Development Office from the Charles E. Culpeper Foundation; $25,000 from the Arthur Vining Davis Foundation (final installment on a two-year grant for the Development Office); $15,000 from the N. Demos Foundation for the Gennadius Library Archivist; $20,000 from the Samuel H. Kress Foundation (first year of a three-year grant for the Professorship of Hellenic Studies), plus $2,500 for Library support; $25,000 from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation toward the new typesetter in the Publications Office; and $16,217 from the Greek Lottery, Ministry of Finance for the Gennadius Library endowment.

In the fiscal year the School received in actual gifts and grants approximately $1,960,000 compared with $826,000 in the previous year. The Annual Appeal to all the School’s various constituencies brought in some $45,000 of which approximately $12,500 was designated for current operating expenses, $32,500 for endowment.

The Board established a Publication Fund in memory of John L. Caskey, started with a gift from a Trustee. Its first priority will be to provide funds for Mr. Caskey’s pioneering work at Lerna.

As the new century builds its momentum the Trustees acknowledge our gratitude to many academic colleagues who have so ably contributed to the School’s great success. In doing so we give special thanks to the retiring Director, Henry Immerwahr, and to his wife, Sara, and to the Mellon Professor, Colin Edmonson. These talented scholars have done much to educate the bright young classicists of the future and to enhance the School’s reputation worldwide. Our sadness at losing them can only be ameliorated by the thought of the fine scholars who have been elected as their replacements. We are confident to be only at the dawn of a bright new day for the School.

ELIZABETH A. WHITEHEAD, President
Trustees of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens

REPORT OF THE CHAIRMAN OF THE MANAGING COMMITTEE

The Managing Committee noted with great regret the deaths of its members, John L. Caskey and James Henry Oliver, both of whom had served the School in a variety of capacities over many years.

New Members of the Managing Committee were elected as follows:
Robert A. Bauslaugh, Emory University
Jack Cargill, Rutgers, the State University
Maureen B. Cavanaugh, Middlebury College
J. Wilson Myers, Michigan State University
Thomas G. Palaima, Fordham University
Sally R. Roberts, Drew University
David W. Rapp, Brock University
Michael Shaw, University of Kansas
Robert F. Sutton, Jr., Loyola University

Appointments to the staff of the School were made as follows:
John McK. Camp II, Lecturer in Archaeology, 1982
Beata Panagopoulos, Kress Professor of Hellenic Studies, 1982-1983
Murray C. McClellan, Secretary of the School 1982-83
Thomas Boyd, Director of the Summer Session, 1983
Jeffrey Soles, Director of the Summer Session, 1983
Helen Bacon, Special Research Fellow, 1984-85
Hara Georgiou, Special Research Fellow, 1984-85
Carolyn Koehler, Representative to the Alumni Council

Continuing concern about the increased cost of operating the School and the necessity to find funds to cover this cost led to the establishment of an ad hoc committee, under the Chairmanship of W. Robert Connor, to examine the scale of annual contributions to the School by its CoOpeating Institutions. The committee recommended, and it was voted:
1. That, beginning in 1982-83, the annual contributions for institutions with doctoral programs in Classics or Classical Archaeology be set at $1,000; that of other institutions at $400.
2. That, beginning in 1982-83, the annual contributions be reviewed every five years and adjusted for the effects of inflation.
3. That, if an institution has, in good faith, made an effort to increase its contribution but is unable to do so, the Chairman of the Managing Committee may grant a delay in the imposition of the increase.

In a continuing effort to make the Regulations of the School both internally consistent and fair, they were amended to make all candidates who are eligible for Regular Membership in the School also eligible for first-year fellowships, thus removing... limitations based on nationality, and to make more explicit the principle that fees assessed those who make use of the School are assessed on a uniform basis for all users.

The Committee on Admissions and Fellowships admitted twenty-two Regular Members for the academic year 1982–83, the largest number in memory.

The Committee on Publications called special attention to the extraordinary efforts of the Editor in connection with the implementation of the School’s system for typesetting at the Institute for Advanced Study. In order to utilize the system more fully, and in order to allow the full-time employment of a computer operator, the School has undertaken to set the American Journal of Archaeology.

The Committee on the Summer Session recommended an increase in the fee for the session to $1,200, a change that was voted. The difficulty in persuading colleagues to undertake the direction of a Summer Session was discussed and attributed, at least in part, to the nominal compensation offered to the directors. An ad hoc committee was charged with making a recommendation for appropriate compensation, and, in the meantime, an arbitrary increase was included in the present budget.

This year marked the end of Professor Henry Immerwahr’s five-year directorship of the School. The Managing Committee expressed its admiration for the skill with which Professor Immerwahr had guided the School during a very hazardous period, for the scholarly distinction which he had lent the institution, and for his careful administration, as well as its gratitude to him for the effort and sacrifice that the job entailed. It voted its thanks, too, to Professor Colin N. Edmonson, who completed his term as Andrew W. Mellon Professor of Classical Studies.

In September at a party in Princeton in honor of his 75th birthday, attended by relatives and old friends, a mock-up of his Festschrift, “Studies in Athenian Architecture, Sculpture and Topography,” was presented to Homer A. Thompson in recognition and appreciation of his great contribution to the School.

The Chairman owes a debt of gratitude to the staff, especially Professor Immerwahr, to the Trustees, and most particularly Mrs. Whitehead, and to all his colleagues for their freely given help.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES R. McCREDIE
Chairman of the Managing Committee

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR

To the Managing Committee, American School of Classical Studies at Athens:

I have the honor to submit a report of the activities of the School from April, 1981 through March, 1982.

This, my last year as Director of the School, has been unusual in several ways, but thanks to the effort of our staff we handed over the School to the new Director, Professor Stephen Miller, in reasonably good condition. The unusual features were three: Professor Colin Edmonson left Athens during the winter term on a sabbatical at the end of his tenure as Mellon Professor and had to be replaced by Dr. John Camp; the Blegen Library expansion was in full swing all during the year and had, alas, not been quite completed when I left; and finally there were significant changes in the economic and political situation in Greece.

The number of members resident in Athens decreased in comparison with previous years. Regular members numbered only fourteen, student associates, 26, and senior associates, 22. The regular members were well adjusted socially, but their interest in aspects of the program other than the field trips left something to be desired, perhaps in large part because of the uncertain job market. The field trips in the fall went to Macedonia, Central Greece, the Southern Peloponnesse, and the Argolid and Corinthia. In the spring, Dr. Camp organized a very successful visit to Delos. In the winter, Dr. Judith Binder was helpful during the transition from Edmonson to Camp. My wife, Sara Immerwahr, again organized the Museum Sessions, with help particularly from Nancy Bookidis and Charles Edwards, the Vanderpool Fellow. Professor Tracy taught a seminar on the Odyssey, Professor Nesbit held meetings on Byzantine security systems, and I taught elementary Epigraphy. The principal innovation this year was a seminar on Doric architecture taught by a team consisting of Charles Williams, Nancy Bookidis, and Nancy Winter. This course was extremely successful, and similar arrangements could be made in the future. The After-Tea-Talks were organized by Charles Edwards; Dr. Sara Bisel held some sessions on skeleton identification. The pottery sessions and the epigraphical study group did not meet this year.

Excavations took place in the summer of 1981 at the Athenian Agora, with spectacular results, especially the discovery of the Painted Stoa; at Kommos, with the important discovery of the Royal Road; at Nemea; and at Corinth. The Stanford team under Professor Michael Jameson continued the survey of the Southern Argolid and Professor Timothy Gregory, the survey of parts of Boiotia. I do not list a number of smaller activities. Study for publication is continuing at Isthmia, Franchthi Cave, Halieis, Samothrace, Lerna and Kea. At Kea, because of the untimely death of Professor John Caskey, Mrs. Elizabeth Schofield has been appointed to direct the publications program, while for Lerna a committee headed by Michael Jameson has a similar function.

The reorganization of the Blegen Library, long in planning, got off the ground under an agreement between the School and Dr. E. G. Prentzas, Consulting Engineer, who undertook the supervision of the whole project. During the fall the Director and his wife moved to a refurbished Gennadeion West House, which will be known as the Ward M. Canaday House in honor of the former Chairman of the Board of Trustees. At the beginning of February, the office staff moved into the former living quarters of the Director in the Main Building, complete with a new telephone system and a TV security system at the front door. At the same time a three-bedroom apartment was constructed in an area of the basement; it was ready for occupancy by the Visiting Professor for 1982/83. The most substantial reconstructions took place in the former office area on the ground floor of the Main Building, and especially in the former seminar room, common room, and adjacent areas, which were redesigned (according to plans worked out by the librarian and Mr. Tanis, head librarian of Bryn Mawr College) to accommodate library offices and two special reading rooms for those visitors who were not to be given access to the stacks. The former office area now contains a substantial addition to the stacks. It was unfortunate that both this Director and Miss Nancy Winter, the School librarian, left before all details had been worked out. The completion of the elevator, moving of books, as well as the completion of a small apartment in the kitchen area of Loring Hall have been completed by the new Director.

Unconnected with this operation was the repair of earthquake damage and the repainting of the reception rooms in the former Director’s house in the Main Building, which are being maintained for official School functions. As a result of all these activities, the other buildings of the School have been rather neglected, and a promised survey of them has not been carried out. This also was a legacy, no doubt unwelcome, which I have left to the new Director.

Financial problems continued to plague the School, although the gradual devaluation of the drachma in relation to the dollar helped us. The published budget figures are not a true indication of the deficit incurred during the year, for we are spending all our income, a policy ultimately ruinous to the endowment. If we had spent only 5% of investments, the deficit would have been substantial. In view of this I would strongly recommend that the present fee structure for members be maintained until the finances of the School show decisive improvement in real terms. Loring Hall, the member’s residence, also continues to show a large deficit despite the new charges ($2,500 for students for 9 months, $3,000 for senior members). These had been calculated to reduce the deficit to 28% of cost, but due to a number of special circumstances (such as the smaller number of students) the actual deficit was 35.5% or $30,000. The dramatic rise in the Greek wages and salaries (which rose, for the minimum wage, by 35–41% on January 1, 1982) was only partially offset by a 20% drop in the drachma; similar increases are to be expected in the future under present government policy, so long as the rate of inflation remains at least 25%.

I confess to a sense of frustration for not having solved the financial problem of the members’ residence. A thorough analysis is again required. I can see only two solutions to the problem: either the School is willing (and able) to accept an annual deficit of $30–40,000 in the operation of Loring Hall or we revise the system by abolishing food service (the major expense) altogether and convert Loring Hall into student-run utility units with kitchenettes. Since our budget for academic expenses is presently at a minimum, I feel that the Loring Hall deficit is not acceptable.

Our relations with the Archaeological Service are in a period of readjustment, as are those of all the foreign schools. On the one hand, we were assured by Mrs. Mercouri, Minister of Culture, and by Mr. Doris, General Secretary to the Ministry, that the government would support the foreign schools, so long as they live within the law. On the other hand, difficulties of a practical nature arose during the year because of the reorganization of the Ministry. The position of Inspector General and the Archaeological Council were abolished, and the vacuum for most of the year was filled by Mr. Doris. (Since I left, the Council has been reconstituted and a Director of Antiquities has been appointed.) There were consequently delays in obtaining permits even for the three standard excavations authorized by law, although they were eventually authorized. The situation was only partially resolved by the time I left, and Professor Miller will have more to say about it.

Two celebrations took place in the course of the year. The first was the presentation of a mock-up of his Festschrift to Professor Eugene Vanderpool, who turned 75 this year. The presentation took place in a simple manner, by his request, in the Director’s office with the participation of Messrs. Edmonson, Travlos, and myself. The citation, dated August 1, 1981, stated:

The volume of essays, "Studies in Attic Epigraphy, History and Topography," a combined effort by members of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, is presented by the School to Eugene Vanderpool on his Seventy-Fifth birthday in gratitude for his many years of inspiring leadership in Classical Studies and as a token of affection. We know that we are speaking for all friends, colleagues, and students at the School when we add our personal best wishes and congratulations on this occasion. (signed) Henry R. Immerwahr, Director, Colin N. Edmonson, Andrew W. Mellon Professor of Classical Archaeology, John Travlos, Honorary Professor of Architecture.

On March 16, 1982, a new lecture series was inaugurated by the School to honor the Director Emeritus of the Gennadeion, Francis R. Walton. The lecture will be given each year in the Gennadius Library in recognition of his many services to the School and to the library and in appreciation of the contributions by his many friends to the Walton Fund for the Gennadeion Endowment. The first lecturer was Dr. Angelos Delivorrias, who spoke in Greek on "Tracing the Sources of a Sopadic Aphrodite." I would add that the Gennadeion Fundraising Committee was active in 1982 with plans for the creation of a new fundraising organization, the Greek "Friends of the Gennadeion," which I hear has now been accepted for tax deduction by the Greek state. Other plans in the last year of my tenure included preparations for a series of Gennadeion concerts and for a facsimile reprint of highest quality of early views of Greece to be sold for the benefit of the library. The Gennadius Library is the School’s main link with modern Greece, and we are pleased that its contributions are being recognized by gifts both from the Greek state and private individuals in Greece.

The Open Meeting was postponed this year to April 7, in order to give Professor Stephen G. Miller the opportunity to participate. I spoke on the work of the School and Professor Miller gave a lecture on "The Macedonian Use of the Panhellenic Sanctuaries." The meeting was attended by about 250 persons and was followed by a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

In looking at the list of Directors the School has had since its founding I find that I have been the first Director since H. Lamar Crosby, Professor of Greek at the University of Pennsylvania and Director in 1938/39, who has not been a professional archaeologist. (1938 was incidentally the year I first came to the School as a graduate student.) It is natural, therefore, that I have had a special interest in supporting aspects of the School's work which would complement its archaeological activities, especially Greek epigraphy and the work of the Gennadius Library. While excavation will always have an important place in the School's work—we are after all chartered by the Greek state as an archaeological school—we must also carry out the mandate we have received from the 120 universities and colleges in the United States which support us to represent the Classical field as a whole. In this respect I note that there are too many young Hellenists in the U.S. who do not avail themselves of the opportunities a stay at the School offers. Perhaps we should recruit more actively. Beyond that, the School should be open to the other fields its location in Greece suggests, such as medieval studies and modern Greek history and literature and modern anthropology. The School should be, in fact, although not in name, a School of Hellenic Studies. Such a program is ambitious, especially at the present time, and will require new infusions of money and other resources.

In conclusion I want to express my gratitude and thanks to all those who have kept the School going in the past five years, first my wife, Dr. Sara A. Immerwahr, who has not only organized much of the social life of the School, but has also substantially contributed to the academic program, and further the Greek and American members of the staff, the employees of the School, and our many Greek and American friends. It is the dedication and loyalty of all these persons that really keeps the School going.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY R. IMMERWAHR
Director

To the Trustees of
American School of Classical Studies at Athens:

We have examined the statements of assets, liabilities and fund balances of AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES at ATHENS as of June 30, 1982 and 1981 and the related statements of changes in fund balances and current funds revenues, expenditures, and other changes for the year ended June 30, 1982. Our examinations were made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and, accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

As described in Note 1(a), the School prepares its financial statements on a comprehensive basis of accounting, principally the cash receipts and disbursements basis modified to accommodate the recording of fixed assets and related depreciation, except that such fixed asset accounting has not been applied to certain properties at Athens which are recorded at nominal value because the cost of such properties is not reasonably determinable. On this basis of accounting, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when the obligation is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, except for the effect of recording the interest in certain properties at Athens at nominal value, as discussed in the preceding paragraph and in Note 1(a), the financial statements referred to above present fairly the assets, liabilities and fund balances of American School of Classical Studies at Athens at June 30, 1982 and 1981, and the changes in fund balances and the current funds revenues, expenditures, and other changes for the year ended June 30, 1982, on the comprehensive basis of accounting described in Note 1(a), which has been applied on a consistent basis.

New York, New York
October 29, 1982
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES at ATHENS

STATEMENTS of ASSETS, LIABILITIES and FUND BALANCES, June 30, 1982 and 1981 (Note 1)

STATEMENT of CHANGES in FUND BALANCES
for the year ended June 30, 1982 (Note 1)

The accompanying notes are an integral part of the financial statements.
NOTES to FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. (a) The accounts of the School are maintained, and the accompanying financial statements are prepared, principally on a cash receipts and disbursements basis; consequently, certain income, primarily investment income, is recognized when received and expenses are recognized when paid. In contrast, under generally accepted accounting principles, income is accrued when earned and expenses are recognized when the obligation is incurred.

The School has substantial interests in certain properties in Athens which are included in the accompanying statement of assets, liabilities and fund balances at a nominal amount (see Note 3). Generally accepted accounting principles require capitalizing either the historical cost or the fair value at date of gift (if donated), or the appraised value of historical cost or fair value at date of gift.

(b) In order to ensure observance of limitations and restrictions placed on the use of the resources available to the School, the accounts of the School are maintained in accordance with the principles of "fund accounting." This is the procedure by which resources for various purposes are classified for accounting and reporting purposes into funds that are in accordance with activities or objectives specified. Separate accounts are maintained for each fund; however, in the accompanying financial statements, funds that have similar characteristics have been combined into fund groups. Accordingly, all financial transactions have been recorded and reported by fund group.

Within the current fund groups, fund balances restricted by outside sources are so indicated and are distinguished from unrestricted funds allocated to specific purposes by the action of the Managing Committee. Externally restricted funds may only be utilized in accordance with the purposes established by the source of such funds and are in contrast with unrestricted funds over which the Managing Committee retains full control to use in achieving any of its institutional purposes.

Endowment funds are subject to the restrictions of gift instruments which require that the principal be invested and the income only be utilized. Quasi-endowment funds have been established by the Managing Committee for the same purposes as endowment funds. However, any portion of quasi-endowment funds may be expended.

All gains and losses arising from the sale, collection or other disposition of investments and other noncash assets are accounted for in the fund which owned such assets. Ordinary income derived from investments is accounted for in the fund owning such assets, except for income derived from investments of endowment and similar funds, which income is accounted for in the fund to which it is restricted or, if unrestricted, as revenues in unrestricted current funds.
All other unrestricted revenue is accounted for in the unrestricted current funds. Restricted gifts, grants, endowment income, and other restricted resources are accounted for in the appropriate restricted funds. Restricted current funds, expendable for operating purposes, are reported as revenues and expenditures in the statement of current funds revenues, expenditures, and other changes.

2. Investments are carried at cost, if purchased, and at market values on dates received, if acquired as gifts. Carrying values and approximate market values of investments in the respective funds were as follows:

Included in building, and furniture and fixtures, are items donated to the School in 1974 and recorded at appraised values of $75,000 and $16,479, respectively. Depreciation of the building, and furniture and fixtures, is provided by the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the assets, ranging from seven to ten years. A nominal amount of $1 is being used for valuing a substantial portion of the School's property at Athens due to the lack of historical cost date. Significant renovations being made to the Blegen Library, located in Athens, are recorded at cost.

4. Retirement benefits for professional employees are funded on a current basis by payments to the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association. Pension expense amounted to approximately $21,500 and $20,000 for the years ended June 30, 1982 and 1981, respectively.

5. The School is exempt from Federal income tax under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code.
