REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE TRUSTEES

The scholarly caliber of members of the School, year after year, from Regular (first year) to Senior (second or third year) to Senior Associates to Faculty, is an indication that the demand continues for first-rate training in Classical Archaeology and related subjects, as experienced in the country of their origin. In other words, the School's purposes are quite as valid and pertinent today as they were in 1881. This may be due in part to recent easing of the job market in the humanities, in part to the increasing use of computer technology to facilitate research, retrieval, and publication of material. I believe it also has something to do with the irresistible appeal that the study of ancient Greece and its people makes to a dedicated segment of contemporary society. Though serving a necessarily small and specialized constituency, the American School contributes significantly to scholarship, and yes, to culture.

This year the Trustees met, formally, twice. At the Annual Meeting in New York in November, Messrs. Crawford, Loomis and Newburg were re-elected, and Malcolm H. Wiener newly elected, for five year terms. Officers of the Executive Committee were re-elected: Simpson, Chairman; Spitzer, President; McCabe, Vice President; Lewis, Treasurer; and Loomis, Secretary. To the Finance Committee of Lewis, Cotsen and McCabe were added Edward E. Cohen, Edwin C. Whitehead and Malcolm H. Wiener.

Regrettably, but with warm appreciation of his generous and conscientious tenure as Trustee and Treasurer, the Board elected J. Richardson Dilworth Trustee Emeritus. The Board observed with sorrow the recent death of Philip Hofer of Harvard, Trustee from 1965 to 1976, and Emeritus to 1981, who had contributed much to the Gennadeion through his contacts and his publication on Edward Lear.

Following dinner, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newburg at the Century Club, the Trustees met again in May. At a luncheon given by Mr. Alsop at his home in Washington he was elected Trustee Emeritus and presented with a "Linear B tablet" recording his dedicated services to the School since 1965. Mr. Herbert L. Lucas, of California, was newly elected Trustee; both elections were ratified at the meeting immediately following, at Dumbarton Oaks.

The Board authorized the appointments of Nancy A. Winter as Librarian and George L. Huxley as Director of the Gennadius Library for 1986-1988; also a Fine Arts Committee (Messrs. Howland and Houghton), to organize the inventory and appraisal of the School's Fine Arts assets in Greece.

Trustees Richard H. McCormick Adams, new Secretary of the Smithsonian... and himself an archaeologist, spoke about the work of the American Schools in the Mediterranean and Near East.

Two events this year focused attention on the Gennadius Library. In February the French Friends of the Gennadeion were invited to a Reunion-Reception at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. Some fifty members of the International Society of Bibliophiles attended, many of whom had not seen each other since the Society met at the Gennadeion in 1977. In April, through the generosity of Virginia Lucas Nick of Dallas, the Dallas Public Library mounted a choice exhibition of books, loaned for the first time, not from Gennadios’ original collection (which may not leave the Library) but from later acquisitions to the collection. The publicity given this unusual event brought the hope that a similar exhibition could be repeated with profit and pleasure.

Discussions with the J. Paul Getty Trust begun in 1983 continued throughout the year in connection with the search for funding of the Agora Research Center and its unique collections; over fifty years of excavations by the American School have produced a cross section of life in Athens from prehistoric time to the present. A summary of the negotiations will be found in the report of the Chairman of the Managing Committee. With the possibility that the School may be able to resume excavation in the Agora (and with the Getty Trust not interested in funding excavation), the conclusion was reached instead to explore support of a different project under the Getty Grants Program.

Concern over the budget has occupied the Board and renews the determined resolve of the Trustees to hold expenditure of investment income to the limit of 5% of market value of the endowment. We subscribe, however, to the task of finding the means to support our effective programs rather than reduce or withdraw them for lack of funds. Much has been done in essential repairs to Mayer House, the New York office, the better to utilize this asset of the School.

A generous gift from Trustee Edwin C. Whitehead matches gifts made in memory of the late President of the Board, Elizabeth A. Whitehead, and enables the School to endow two important faculty positions: the Elizabeth A. Whitehead Visiting Professors.

Gifts in kind include the late Charles H. Morgan’s collection of valuable classical and archaeological books.

Alumnae/i and Friends of the School have contributed $27,524 for current operating expenses, an increase of 25% over last year. From Friends of the Gennadius Library, including the Philoi tes Gennadeiou, comes $31,180. Gifts in the amount of $432,490 brought the centennial Endowment Fund, on May 29, 1985, to a total of $3.9 million, toward a goal of $6 million. The School was now offered a grant of $500,000, upon condition that this sum be matched by new contributions, including pledges, from Trustees only, within the next fiscal year.

On behalf of the Trustees, I would like to express our appreciation for the cooperation and trust extended to the School by the Greek Ministry of Culture and our Greek colleagues. The spirit of this relationship underlies and supports the success of our enterprise. It complements the exceptional commitment of staff, the Trustees and the Managing Committee who keep the School functioning at its best for the benefit of both its American and its Greek participants.

Respectfully submitted,

DOREEN C. SPITZER
REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

During the fiscal year 1984–1985, the endowment and current funds of the School grew from $14,395,000 to $18,584,160 despite budgeted expenditures from endowment income of $782,450. Of the $4,189,160 total increase, $432,490 was contributed as Capital Campaign endowment gifts and the rest represented investment gains. The endowment is managed by two firms, John W. Bristol, Inc. (responsible for a stock and bond portfolio) and Grantham, Mayo, Van Otterloo, Inc. (responsible for a stock portfolio). Some 63% of total funds as of year-end were invested in common stocks, 34% in bonds and the balance in money market securities.

A thorough review and revision of accounting, budgeting and audit systems was completed during fiscal year 1985 with expert assistance from John J. Sproule, our consulting accountant, as well as from Ludmila Schwarzenberg, our Administrative Director. We also began a much-needed renovation of Mayer House, our American headquarters generously donated by the Mayer family, and plan to make even more use of this unique facility in the years ahead.

Respectfully submitted,

HUNTER LEWIS
Treasurer of the Trustees

REPORT OF THE CHAIRMAN OF THE MANAGING COMMITTEE

The Managing Committee noted with great regret the deaths of its members, Peter Charanis and Gertrude Smith Greenwood, both of whom had served the School over many years.

Valparaiso University was welcomed as a new cooperating institution, and the following were elected to membership in the Managing Committee:

Michael Kumpf, Valparaiso University
Sarah S. Leach, Sweet Briar College

The following officers of the Managing Committee were elected to serve from July 1, 1985 to June 30, 1990:

James R. McCredie, Chairman
Alan L. Boegelhold, Vice-Chairman
Mary C. Sturgeon, Secretary

and the following were elected to Standing Committees:

Executive Committee, 1985–1989: W. Robert Connor and Gerald P. Schaus
Committee on Committees, 1985–1987: Carol Lawton, Kathleen W. Slane, Paul W. Wallace
Committee on Admissions and Fellowships, 1985–1989: Helen F. North, Susan I. Rotroff
Committee on the Summer Session, 1985–1989: David Rupp
Committee on Publications, 1985–1990: Steven Lattimore

A proposal which had been under discussion with the J. Paul Getty Trust for the establishment of a J. Paul Getty Center for Research in Classical Archaeology at the Athenian Agora was finally abandoned. A contract drafted to preserve intact the School's direct control over the Agora and its collections proved unattractive to the Getty Trust, and it appeared unlikely that a contract acceptable to the Trust would allay all the reservations that had been expressed in the long deliberations of the Managing Committee.

The Managing Committee adopted a policy of consistent advertisement of all appointments, with the proviso that, when appropriate, such advertisements will state that the incumbent is eligible to reapply for the position and may specify whether, in fact, the incumbent intends to apply.
A budget was presented and adopted which showed a reduced but still substantial deficit. Concern over the deficit was expressed, and, since an arrangement with the Getty Trust no longer promised to correct the situation, increase of the School's endowment and annual support were recognized as the only available means to permit the School to continue its work at the present level.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES R. McCREDIE
Chairman of the Managing Committee

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR

To the Managing Committee, American School of Classical Studies at Athens:

I have the honor to submit a report of the activities of the School from April, 1984 through March, 1985.

The twelve months since I last reported to you have been a very busy period, but one of consolidation rather than of innovation. Programs and ideas instituted in the two previous years have been followed through and modified, as the School continues its role as the center of research and study for American scholars in Greece.

THE REGULAR PROGRAM

It may strain credulity to state that, after two consecutive years of very good students, this year's group was the best yet. One student Associate Member consistently joined the 16 Regular Members in the program, and of this group well over half will surely make a significant contribution to Classical Studies in the future.

The traditional organization of the fall trips was followed, with Professor Cooper leading the first and third, Dr. Williams the fourth, and the undersigned the second, this year to the Northwest. In general there were remarkably few problems.

The winter term also was organized in the traditional way, under Professor Cooper's guidance, and was supplemented once again by several additional features. One should note the seminar by Professor Helen Bacon on the Furies in ancient art and literature and one by Professor Hara Georgiou on the history and topography of Kea. The trip to Kea at the end of March was postponed in favor of the optional, unofficial, trip to Ionia. Professor Panagopoulou offered once again her seminar and trip dealing with Frankish Architecture, and Kelly Petropoulou offered an introduction to epigraphy. John Camp not only ran the usual pottery seminars but also made very valuable contributions during his "training period" on each of the trips.

SUMMER SESSION

Once again two groups were led during the summer, this time of 19 members each, by Professors John Fischer and Thomas Palaima. Although they generously credit the School staff with the success of their sessions, their own preparations and hard work combined to make the summer trips unusually well run.

THE GENNADEION

This was not the happiest of years for the Gennadeion, for the disappearance of 363 volumes (consisting of 590 titles) was uncovered. Although these are not for the most part, fortunately, rare books, extensive efforts have not revealed the guilty party. Greater security measures have been instituted.

Despite this unhappy news, many other efforts have been successful. These have largely involved fund raising and exhibitions and, although they require much time, those efforts are being rewarded. In that context, the loss of support from the Demos Foundation is most unfortunate, for the Gennadeion is attracting an ever growing number of important archives, and it is obviously necessary to care for them properly. On the other hand, many institutions and individuals here are supporting the library, and the Philoi tes Gennadeiou have pledged 2,000,000 drachmas for the support of operating expenses next year. It is cheering to see this local support, for the readership in the Gennadeion during calendar 1984 consisted of 587 of whom 512 were Greek.

The Blegen Library

This continues to be the essential base for the work of our members. The expansion of two years ago allows that base to be extended by allowing our non-member colleagues use of the Blegen Library, which has not only generated much good will but has also provided increased opportunities for sharing knowledge and information across ethnic lines. In addition, the holdings have increased to 48,791 volumes.

The total readership for the year ending on September 30 fell slightly to 689 (703), but we have experienced an increase in book loss which rivals the heights (or depths?) of 1978/9. It is clear that some reorganization of the space, increased security measures, and greater continuity in the librarian’s position are necessary.

Computerization

As mentioned in past reports, the increasing bureaucracy in Greece and the increasing numbers of members of the School have brought a work load which cannot be handled in the traditional ways. During the past two years we have gradually installed IBM PC computers in a variety of places, and they are all now being used although their full potential has yet to be realized. The Business, Director’s, and Secretary’s Offices are all working much more efficiently as a result, and we anticipate an increased utilization of the Blegen Library’s IBM PC XT to include the processing of the collection. Also to be noted is the “Member’s Computer”, donated by the Alumni Association which has proved to be extraordinarily popular. Dr. Bridges and Professor Cooper have both been of enormous assistance in seeing that this process has been as smooth as possible.

Field Work

Teams of scholars were engaged this past year in research and publication at the Athenian Agora, Haliars and the Franchthi Cave, Kea, Lerna, Nichoria, and Samothrace. A surface survey was carried out in the Mesara in Crete jointly by Professor L. V. Watrous and D. Vallianou of the Herakleion Ephoria. Active excavation work was carried out once again at Corinth under the direction of Dr. C. K. Williams, II. This produced many new details about the history and architecture of the Theater, and considerable information about the Roman houses just east of the Theater. The plaster wall decoration of these houses was of particular interest, as well as the discovery of a cult statue of the Egyptian god Osiris.

At Kommos in Crete, Professor J. W. Shaw of the University of Toronto conducted the 9th annual campaign. This year saw the full delineation of the massive Late Minoan I Building T which proves to have a total length of some 55.40 meters, and the discovery of a Late Minoan III structure of similarly great size but less substantial construction which involves the use of wooden frames within the masonry of the walls.

The Nemea Valley saw much activity under the direction of Professor J. C. Wright of Bryn Mawr College. A surface survey of the whole area has begun, and excavations were undertaken on the hill of Tsoungiza. The former has produced results which are not yet complete, but already a number of sites of various periods have been identified. The latter work, a continuation of excavations begun in 1925 by the School, brought back to light from the work of 1927 architectural remains of the Early Helladic II and the Late Helladic II periods with the latter producing especially interesting pottery. Artifacts were also recovered from the Neolithic and several subdivisions of the Helladic eras.

The University of California at Berkeley finished the archaeological museum at Nemea, and the School formally presented the building and its collections to the Greek State in May, 1984, at ceremonies attended by, among others, the Prime Minister and the Minister of Culture.

Work also began on a limited reconstruction project on the Temple of Zeus at Nemea. This has, to date, seen the repair of several blocks in the krepidoma and the replacement of 49 missing blocks with new stone near the northeast corner of the building. The two columns which are to be re-erected are not yet in place.

Public Relations

As we approach national elections in Greece it is perhaps risky to predict the nature of our future relations with the community where we live and work. Nonetheless, the general picture has continued to improve, but it is not overwhelmingly rosy. Ignorance and fear are only gradually, and not completely, being replaced by knowledge and mutual understanding. Our efforts this past year have included a brochure on the Agora in Greek, the dedication of the museum at Nemea, the continuation of the “After-Tea Talks” in the form reported last year, and a number of receptions and lectures by our members to Greek audiences. It is encouraging that these and other efforts to work with our hosts are being well received by old and new friends; indeed, the latter include some former detractors.

Maintenance

Although we are beginning a systematic attempt to carry out preventive maintenance, we have already been too late in one case. I refer to the fire in the Agora which destroyed and damaged part of the photographic archive. We were fortunate that the fire did not do worse damage, and it must be acknowledged that the wiring in the Stoa of Attalos continues to be a cause of concern. That we had warning of such a possibility some seven years ago should serve to tell us that we must not continue to let such matters slide. This is true of all the School buildings, both in Athens and in Corinth. In addition to rewiring, we should install fire extinguishing and alarm systems, and I shall be reporting to you the estimated cost in due course.
Despite this concern, it must be said that the School buildings were very well built and have displayed no signs of major problems.

FINANCES

We are all very much aware of the School's continuing financial problems and the need to find new funding, especially endowment, to meet them. We have been very fortunate during the past few years that the strong dollar has made it possible to meet our budgets, and even to show budgetary surpluses. Since, however, those budgets have consistently been deficit ones, this is hardly a reason for rejoicing. We cannot depend upon the dollar to continue its upward climb, and we must face the fact that we need ever more staff in order to provide basic services for our members and colleagues. This past year saw 187 members and American staff who had to be provided with such services. (This is the number which we can control from Athens; our records are based in part upon fees which have been paid here, but many members paid their fees in New York. The true number, especially when one includes spouses and dependents, is much higher). The days of a Director and 7 students are far in the past. While such increases are a most encouraging sign for the state of Classical Studies in America, we must meet the challenge of our mission and find the economic basis for doing so.

In conclusion, the School faces no overwhelming problems, although future difficulties can be predicted and should be prepared for now.

Respectfully submitted,

STEPHEN G. MILLER
Director

The Board of Trustees
American School of Classical Studies at Athens:

We have examined the balance sheet of American School of Classical Studies at Athens as of June 30, 1985 and the related statements of changes in fund balances and current funds revenues, expenditures and other changes for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and, accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

As described in note 3 to the financial statements, certain assets of the plant fund are recorded at a nominal amount rather than cost at date of purchase or fair value at date of donation, which practice is not in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, except for the effect on the financial statements of the matter discussed in the preceding paragraph, the aforementioned financial statements present fairly the financial position of American School of Classical Studies at Athens at June 30, 1985 and the changes in fund balances and the current funds revenues, expenditures and other changes for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles which, except for the change, with which we concur, in the method of recognizing restricted revenue as described in note 1 to the financial statements, have been applied on a basis consistent with that of the previous year.

All other unrestricted revenues are accounted for in the unrestricted current fund. Restricted gifts, grants, endowment income, and other restricted resources are accounted for in the appropriate restricted funds. Effective July 1, 1984, restricted current funds are reported as revenues and expenditures in the statement of current funds revenues, expenditures and other changes when expended for current operating purposes. Prior to July 1984, restricted current funds were reported as revenues in the statement of current funds revenues, expenditures and other changes when received. The effect of this change was to increase restricted revenues reported in the 1985 statement of current funds revenues, expenditures and other changes by $77,784.

Foreign Currency Transactions
The School's accounting records in Greece are maintained in U.S. dollars. Transactions in Greek drachmae are converted into U.S. dollars at daily exchange rates. Cash held in Greek drachmae have been translated into U.S. dollars at the current rate at June 30, 1985 (134.95 Greek drachmae to one U.S. dollar).

Certain assets of endowment and similar funds are pooled on a market value basis, with each individual fund subscribing to or disposing of units on the basis of the market value per unit at the beginning of the period during which the transaction takes place. Of the total units outstanding, each having a market value of approximately $15.24 at June 30, 1985, 480,076 units (market value, $7,317,214) were owned by the endowment funds and 716,658 (market value, $10,923,147) were owned by quasi-endowment funds.

The following tabulation summarizes changes in relationships between carrying value and market value of the pooled assets:

(3) Investment in Plant
A substantial portion of the School's interests in certain properties at Athens are included in the accompanying balance sheet at a nominal amount. Generally accepted accounting principles require the capitalization of plant assets at cost at date of purchase or fair value at date of donation. Plant assets are comprised of the following:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

<tbody>
<tr>

<tr>

<tr>

</tbody>

Included in building and equipment are items donated to the School in 1974 and recorded at appraised values of $75,000 and $16,479, respectively. Depreciation of the building and equipment is provided by the straight-line method.
over the estimated useful lives of the assets, ranging from seven to ten years. A nominal amount of $1 is being used for valuing a substantial portion of the School's property at Athens due to the lack of historical cost data. Significant renovations made to the Blegen Library, located in Athens, are recorded at cost.

(4) Transfer of Restricted Funds
During the year ended June 30, 1985, the School decided to utilize investments of the current restricted funds to liquidate a liability of $423,499 of the current restricted funds to the endowment and similar funds and to transfer $1,389,314 of current restricted funds to quasi-endowment funds. Investments having a carrying value of $1,633,061 were used to liquidate the liability and effect of the transfer. The excess of the market value of the investments over their carrying value ($179,752) has been recorded as a net gain on transfer of restricted funds in the current unrestricted fund.

(5) Retirement Benefits
Retirement benefits for professional employees are funded on a current basis, principally by payments to the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association. Pension expense amounted to $23,839 for the year ended June 30, 1985.
