A Call to Arms: Greek American Foundation’s Fundraiser at Stix in NYC

Continued from page 1

...in 1913, under the American Society of Clinical Studies.

Athenian Agora Digs at NY Arts Club

By Constantine S. Serigos

THS Staff Writer

MANHATTAN—Like the United States, the city of Athens had humble origins, being the present of the Minoan civilizations. Dr. John McKinley Camp II, the laureate Professor of Classics at Rutgers University College at New Brunswick, New Jersey, in discussion of the recent Athenan organization the Greek-American Historical Society, a group whose members are the descendants of immigrants who arrived in the last few decades. The group is a non-profit, non-political organization. It is dedicated to the promotion of Greek-American culture, the preservation of the Greek-American heritage, and the fostering of a sense of community among Greek-Americans.

Dr. Camp discussed the importance of John Blassingame, the son of the world’s first black lawyer, and his role in advocating for the rights of African Americans. This relationship between the two was critical to the development of the modern legal profession.

Dr. Camp was introduced to the audience by Dr. Constantine S. Serigos, a professor of Classics at Rutgers University College at New Brunswick, New Jersey. Dr. Serigos expressed his gratitude for Dr. Camp’s contribution to the understanding of Greek-American history.

Dr. Camp began his presentation by discussing the history of the Greek-American community in the United States. He noted that this community has been characterized by a strong sense of identity and a deep commitment to the preservation of Greek culture.

Dr. Camp introduced the topic of the evening: the excavation of the Athenian Agora. He discussed the significance of the site and its potential for shedding light on the history of the city of Athens.

He highlighted the continumumboth on the 5th century BC to the 1st century CE. The site is the source of the name of the modern city of Athens. He discussed the excavations and the results of the recent dig.

Dr. Camp was also invited to discuss the importance of different kinds of evidence in identifying what is missing, including coin finds, and written sources such as Pausanias and Xenophon.

The proceeds of the next year’s event will be used to support the community. She said watching the news from Greece breaks her heart.

Mouryias gives 600K for NU Greek Studies

The law firm of Mouryias, PLLC, has donated $600,000 to the University of Chicago to support the study of Greek culture.

The firm’s founder, Dr. Constantine S. Serigos, a professor of Classics at Rutgers University College at New Brunswick, New Jersey, expressed his gratitude for the donation and his commitment to the preservation of Greek culture.

Mouryias has a long history of supporting Greek education and culture. In 2013, the firm donated $500,000 to the American College of Athens.

Mouryias has a long history of supporting Greek education and culture. In 2013, the firm donated $500,000 to the American College of Athens.