BULLETIN

ASCSA SUMMER SESSIONS, 2012

The American School of Classical Studies at Athens announces its Summer Sessions for 2012. The two six-week sessions are designed for those who wish to become acquainted with Greece and its antiquities, and to improve their understanding of the relationship among the monuments, landscape, and climate of the country and its history, literature, and culture.

Enrollment is open to North American graduate and advanced undergraduate students and to high school and college instructors of classics and related subjects. Each session is limited to twenty participants.

Roughly half of each session is spent in travel throughout Greece. Three trips of varying duration give the participant an introduction to the major archaeological sites and museum collections in North and Central Greece, the Peloponnese, and Crete. The remainder of the session is devoted to study of the museums and monuments of Athens and the surrounding area with day trips to such sites as Marathon, Sounion, and Eleusis. Each participant will usually present two "on-site" oral reports on assigned topics. The program is demanding, both physically and intellectually.

Fees for the 2012 program are $4,250. This includes tuition, room for the entire six-week period, partial board in Athens, travel within Greece, and museum and site fees. International airfare, some meals, and incidental expenses are the participant's responsibility. Financial aid is available in the form of scholarships through the School. They are awarded on the basis of academic merit. Consult the ASCSA website for a list of scholarships funded by the School and other agencies.

The Directors for the 2012 Summer Sessions are Session I (June 11 through July 25): Professor Bella Vivante, University of Arizona; Session II (June 18 through August 1): Professor Timothy F. Winters, Austin Peay State University.

More information and online application forms are available through the web site: www.ascsa.edu.gr. Applicants will complete an online application, and arrange for the online submission of three letters of recommendation. Application fee: $25.
